THE FIELDS AT THE PORTAL

1 The Room
2 The Record
3 The Voice
4 The Judge
5 The City
6 The City, as the thief would write it.

The thief left his key on the forty-second page of the Strange Library. (Vigenère, standard table. Letters only. The key runs from its first letter. Submit what you write.)

The city is not the last answer. The last answer is the city as the thief would write it.

STEP ONE

The Room

Read down the first letters. Then walk them back by the day of April 1994 that a coroner gave for a frontman found in the room above his garage. The day he died, not the day he was found.

> Half the room came for the headliner, the other half for the rumour.
>
> Word had gone round about a band no one had heard of.
>
> Three dollars at the door, a local favourite on the bill.
>
> Hands went up when the unknown band turned out to be very well known.
>
> The night was the fourth of October, 1992.
>
> It had been open not quite eighteen months.
>
> No one who was there tells it the same way twice.
>
> Quiet came in December 2007; noise came back in 2009.
>
> Just remember: the name on the door bites.

Name the room. Then take it to the Study. Somewhere on its page there is a mark that was not there yesterday.

Everything in this pack can be researched. Nothing in it can be read until you find the way in.

This month the pack is only the first door. The rest of the route runs through Scrypt itself, and it will reward anyone who looks at more than one room of the house.
